BIG CHANGES IN
B. & O. SCHEDULE*Late Train Out of Pittsburgh
Will Meet With Favor
Here.*A BOON TO THE THEATREGOERS

No. 10 Will Not Leave Steel City Until 11:55, Arriving Here at 1:40 A. M. Some Changes on the S. & C. Branch—New Chicago Service.

Although few changes were made in the new Baltimore & Ohio passenger schedule which goes into effect on Sunday, some of them are the most radical that have been made in recent years. The creation of new through trains to Chicago, making two each way every 24 hours, has resulted in one change of time that will meet with favor here. Train No. 10, which now leaves Pittsburgh at 10:30 P. M. will not leave until 11:55, arriving here at 1:40 A. M. instead of 11:16, as under the present schedule. This will make it possible for Connellsville theatregoers to see the play in Pittsburgh and return the same evening.

A new "pair" is made in train service. Under the new schedule, train Nos. 19 and 11 will be run through to Chicago. Hereafter No. 9 and 19 have been the Cleveland trains. The Cleveland connection will continue to be made. In the future No. 9 will "sit" in Pittsburgh instead of No. 11, the Duquesne Limited, which formerly ran only between New York and Pittsburgh as the companion train to No. 12. Hereafter Nos. 9 and 12 will be the New York to Pittsburgh fliers.

Train No. 12 will continue to be the fastest eastbound train. The new schedule calls for an average speed of 24.8 miles an hour over the mountains. Coming west No. 5 is the flyer, its schedule averaging 35.1 miles an hour.

The only other change made on the main line trains is with No. 14, which will arrive here at 4:50 instead of 4:30 at present. The train will leave Cumberland at 1:55 instead of 1:30.

On the Fairmont branch, No. 2 will leave Fairmont 10 minutes later, arriving here at 1:55 instead of 1:45 to connect with No. 16.

Several changes have been made on the Somerset & Cambria branch, between Rockwood and Johnstown. Going west, No. 7 will leave Rockwood at 6:30 A. M. It now leaves at 7:05 and is known as No. 32. No. 13, now known as No. 27, will leave Rockwood at 11:20, the same as at present, but will arrive in Johnstown five minutes later. No. 17, now known as No. 205, will leave Rockwood at 1:55 P. M. as at present, but does not reach Johnstown until 7:10 instead of 7:05. Coming east, No. 8, now known as No. 204, will leave Johnstown at 3:45 instead of 6 o'clock. No. 20, now known as No. 210, a Sunday train, will leave Johnstown at 7:45 instead of 8 A. M., arriving in Rockwood at 10 o'clock, as at present. No. 43, now known as No. 278, will leave Johnstown at 4 o'clock instead of 1:30, arriving in Rockwood at 6:20 instead of 6:55.

PENNSY SCHEDULE GOES INTO EFFECT SUNDAY

The new schedule and passenger schedule of the Pennsylvania railroad will go into effect at the same time that that of the Baltimore and Ohio does, next Sunday. As yet the official schedule has not been received by the local office.

Advance proofs were sent here last week. Outside of a few minor changes on the main line and several branches there are no changes. There are no changes whatever on the Southwest branch.

GAS COMPANY STARTS
RUBBER HOSE CRUSADE

Practice Is Responsible For Nine Tenths of Explosions, Says Superintendent.

Following the explosion at the home of Etalo Nannini on the West Side this morning, Superintendent J. E. Angle of the Fayette County Gas Company has started a thorough crusade against the use of rubber hose in connection with gas pipes with fatigues. In the rules and regulations of the Fayette County Gas Company no fitter will be allowed to put rubber hose to connect pipes and ranges.

The gas company, however, is powerless to dictate to the owners and residents of houses. All it can do is to win the housewife against the practice.

"Nine-tenths of all gas explosions come from this neglect," said Superintendent Angle this morning.

TITANIC REPORT DELAYED; SMITH SEEKS MORE LIGHT

Chairman of Committee Probing Disaster to Gulf Mrs. P. A. B. Widener.

United Press Telegram.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 24.—An unexpected flying trip today to Philadelphia and New York by Senator Smith, chairman of the Senate Titanic Investigating Committee, postponed submission of the final report upon the disaster to the Senate until next Tuesday.

The committee had planned to file its report but the printers were unable to complete it and Senator Smith was compelled to hurry away. It was learned that Smith will take the testimony of Mrs. P. A. B. Widener, widow of the magnate who was drowned when the giant liner sank. It was charged that Mr. and Mrs. Widener were hosts at a "millionaire dinner" party on the Sunday night that the Titanic crashed into an iceberg and that Captain Smith was negligent.

When the committee's report is presented in the Senate next Tuesday, Senator Smith today stated, he will deliver his speech and introduce bills comprising remedial legislation, he deems necessary as the result of the inquiry.

BUILDING BOOM HITS THE

Rockwood is having a building boom. George Belcher will start work Monday on the construction of a modern brick theatre, 22 feet wide and 80 feet deep. It will be a combined theatre and nickelodeon. The auditorium will be sufficiently large to accommodate 500 people.

The foundation for the new bank building is already well under way. It will be three stories high. The bank and one store-room are located on the first floor, apartments and lodge quarters being provided on the upper stories.

BEE SWARM SIGNAL BOX; CONDUCTORS LOSE NERVE

Likewise Passengers Take Flight When Buzzing Insects Invade Uniontown.

Special to The Courier.

UNIONTOWN, May 24.—The largest swarm of bees ever seen in Uniontown, according to the old residents, landed on a telephone pole at the corner of Galatin avenue and Main street this morning. Eats-Dits Tibbs and other celebrities attempted to swarm them and start an apary, but a mountainous huckster was the one who finally succeeded.

Tibbs fired the bees from the telephone pole through the medium of a tin can. They then swarmed on the top of the West Penn block signal boxes. Conductors contracted cold feet when it came to throwing blocks, cars were delayed for a time and passengers sought safety in flight. A few minor stings were reported.

The Master Mechanics hall is being moved to a place near the pool. It will be a howling alley and a dancing hall. The opening will probably be delayed until this is finished. Swimming is now being allowed in the pool.

EXPLOSION OF GAS WRECKS HOME IN GREENWOOD; JOHN NANNINI IS INJURED; ENTIRE NEIGHBORHOOD IS SHAKEN UP

Rubber Hose Believed to Have Been Cause of Outburst of Flame Which Nearly Claims One Life and Endangers Others—Telephone Blown From Wall of Neighboring Home but Not a Dish Breaks in Room Next to Where Gas Let Go.

As the result of a leak in a rubber hose leading to a gas range in the kitchen of the home of Etalo Nannini, manager of the Connellsville Mercantile Company, an explosion partially wrecked the house and early this morning John Nannini, father of Manager Nannini, sustained burns about the face and body. Mrs. Assunta Nannini, his wife, was nearly prostrated from fright following the explosion but has fully recovered. Mr. Nannini removed to the Cottage State hospital. At the hospital this morning it was stated that the burns of the man although very painful were not serious.

Mrs. R. W. Allen had a narrow escape from a serious injury. The entire side of the house on Marshall avenue, West Side, was blown outward from six inches to two feet while all window panes were smashed and furniture overturned. The kitchen is a small affair in the rear of the dining room. John Nannini, aged 65, had risen early, as was his custom, to cook his breakfast. It is said, he went to the kitchen about six o'clock. Entering the room he lit a match and the explosion followed. He was blown against the kitchen door with great force. Curious and other inflammable material caught fire.

There are three rooms downstairs. The stairway leading to the cellar was on the lower side of the house and these acted as a support for that side of the house when it was shaken by the explosion. The upper side of the house was supported only by small joists and could not stand the strain.

GREAT POMP MARKS
FREDERICK'S FUNERAL

Notables From All Europe Attend Services in Christiansborg.

MANY ROYAL MOURNERS THERE

The Remains of the King Interred in the Crypt of the Chapel of Frederick V. Where Rest Bones of Thirty-three Danish Monarchs of the Past.

United Press Telegram.

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, May 24. With impressive pomp and ceremony, marked by the presence of four kings, four queens and 2,000 notables from all over Europe, in direct contrast to the loneliness and obscurity of his sudden death at Hamburg, the body of the late King Frederick VIII, today was laid to rest in Frederick V's chapel at Roskilde, after lying in state since Monday in Christiansborg chapel.

After brief and simple private funeral services in Christiansborg chapel, the casket was taken to a hearse and driven through the streets to the railway station, passing thousands of silent people who stood with bowed heads, and followed by the royal mourners and foreign representatives on foot.

Surrounded by a vast throng, the casket was placed on board a special train for Roskilde, ancient capital of Denmark, and twenty miles west of Christiansborg. There the magnificent state funeral was conducted in the chapel, the casket was placed in the crypt. Thousands of men and women from all over Denmark were at Roskilde and vast throngs stood about the cathedral until the ceremonies were over.

After the funeral services, some of the royal mourners, following the ancient custom, threw handfuls of dust toward the casket. The remains of the king were interred in the crypt of the chapel of Frederick V, where rest the bones of thirty-three Danish monarchs.

WRITES 1,000 WORDS IN 22
MINUTES; IS AWARDED MEDAL

Miss Anna Roe Thompson Is the Best Typewriter in the High School This Year.

Miss Anna Roe Thompson, winner in the Lehigh Valley Typewriter Company's contest in the High School, was awarded the gold medal offered for the best exhibition of typewriting this morning. She was presented with the medal by Principal Bruce G. P. Coburn in chapel this morning.

Miss Thompson wrote 1,000 words in 22 minutes, with eight errors. Deducting five words for each error this leaves a net record of 41 words a minute. Miss Thompson is now with the Opelika Coal Company. Another medal will be offered next year.

Will Come Home Soon.

Dr. T. H. White arrived home last evening from Johns-Hopkins hospital, Baltimore. He reports Dr. M. B. Shupe to be getting along very nicely and unless other complications set in he will be brought home in about two weeks.

Gas Meeting Tonight.

The regular monthly meeting of the Fayette County Gas Company will be held this evening.

The fire alarm was turned in soon after the explosion and the department responded. The flames were soon smothered. R. S. McKee was summoned and attended Nannini, ordering him removed to the Cottage State hospital.

Mrs. R. W. Allen, a neighbor, before six o'clock this morning was awakened by the odor of gas. She thought that some pipe in the place where she had been standing was leaking and investigated. She had gone down stairs in the cellar and had come out for a moment she stood on the sidewalk just outside the dining room. Then she walked to the front of the house. A moment later the explosion occurred and the place where she had been standing was filled with flying glass. So great was the explosion that she was thrown into the air and smoke filled the upper rooms.

The explosion was felt in all nearby houses. Several windows were knocked out of Mrs. Allen's home while at the J. W. Raudman home the force of the explosion knocked a telephone wire off the wall. Several pieces of curtain were found this morning on telephone wires at the Raudman home.

The exact amount of the loss has not been estimated. Insurance to the amount of $1200 had been taken out but has not been determined whether the policy will cover an explosion. Outside of burning a few curtains, there was no loss from fire. A peculiar fact in the explosion was that although the force was great enough to blow out the side of the house, it did not break a dish in a china closet standing in the kitchen.

Two more players are on the way. Abe Smith, who played short at Coanville for a time, and Sam Griffith, a pitcher, have promised to come at the end of the week. The first year a class of ten was graduated, the second a class of 21, the third year the class was composed of 11 members, the fourth 10, the fifth 18, the sixth 14 and the seventh 13.

NOT AGGRESSIVE IN NEW JERSEY

For First Time Since He Opened Massachusetts Fight He Avoids Reference to Former Friend—Re-grets He Must Defend His Actions.

United Press Telegram.

PHILADELPHIA, N. J., May 24.—Speaking with a listlessness that was in sharp contrast with the aggressive manner of the past week, President Taft opened today his campaign in New Jersey with a speech at Flemington.

The President was plainly wearied of the strife. He spoke almost without gestures and in a conversational tone, and at times could scarcely be heard on the outskirts of the crowd of 1,000. The President repeated his apology for being forced to go out and campaign in defense of his administration and catalogued and summarized his legislative and administrative achievements.

For the first time since he began speaking in Massachusetts nearly a month ago, the President refrained from any personal attack on his former friend. The President this morning made speeches at Amberville, Frenchtown and Phillipsburg and other small towns enroute but was never aggressive in his utterances. Shortly afterwards he spoke at Summerville where he took lunch with State Senator Frelinghuysen.

DON'T BE NERVOUS AND RUN-DOWN

New Tonic, Tona Vita, Will Positively Restore Your Old Vitality.

Nervousness, depression of spirits, lack of energy, run down, these are the chief symptoms of nervous debility, the modern affliction caused largely by the rush, hustle and worry of modern life.

If you are a sufferer from this all-too-common complaint, and cannot go to a high priced sanatorium to have rest and diet build you up, you should read carefully the following statement by C. N. Hunt, Esq., of 602 Sixth-st., Milwaukee, Wis., concerning the remarkable new tonic "Tona Vita" that has made such a great record during the past year. Mr. Hunt says: "For a number of years my wife has been a sufferer from a continuous run down, nervous condition and stomach trouble. I took her to a number of doctors, but none seemed to give her any relief. She grew constantly worse and her entire system became affected. "She could hardly eat anything and would say the very thought of eating made her sick. She caught one bad cold after another and was always tired and languid. She had had headaches and attacks of dizziness. "I got some Tona Vita a few months ago. My wife began taking the tonic that night and we were pleasantly surprised to notice an improvement after the second day. She is now like a different woman. The nervousness and depression are all gone, and she eats and sleeps better than she has for years. It seems wonderful to me that such a change in her. I believe "Tona Vita" is worth its weight in gold."

If you are debilitated and run down, above all things try "Tona Vita." You will never regret it, as it will build you up like magic. It is the finest preparation now on the market.

A. A. Clarke has the agency for this great medicine in Conneville. The price will be returned if it doesn't meet with your entire approval. The Approved Formula Co., Dayton, O.

FRIDAY EVENING, MAY 24, 1912.

The Steel Corporation's Official Inspection of the Coke Region.

If the visit of the President Farrell and Vice President Kere of the United States Steel Corporation to the Connellsville region and the careful inspection of the coke-making plants of the corporation here portends no new acquisitions or improvements, it is at least a marked tribute to the prime importance of Connellsville coke as a furnace fuel in spite of the large sums of money spent in the construction of by-product ovens at Gary and Joliet to make coke from the inferior coals of Indiana and Illinois.

While the Steel Corporation has been busy in diffusing information about the character and yield of its Lake shore by-product ovens, experience has demonstrated that the best coke is made from the best coal, but that an available coke may be made of inferior coal in by-product ovens at a minimum of cost. By an "available" coke we mean a coke that though inferior in chemical and physical qualities, and melting a less quantity of ore per ton, is still a cheaper coke at the furnace than the coals of other regions made in by-product ovens from better grades of coal.

The freight on Connellsville coke from this region to Gary and Joliet is $2.35 per ton. Considering the value of Connellsville coke per ton and its limited quantity, Connellsville coke laid down at the Gary and Joliet furnaces is worth $2.00 per ton. It is probable that the by-product coke, making due allowance for its smelting capacity and other deficiencies, is still a good fuel proposition.

The Steel Corporation has 568 by-product ovens at Gary and 350 at Joliet. It was announced some time ago that these would provide all the coke for the plants there and no more Connellsville coke would be shipped to those points; nevertheless, it is a fact that about 1,000 tons per day is still being shipped from this region to these Lake shore furnaces. It is possible that this coke is necessary because of delay in operating the by-product ovens to full capacity, or it may have been found advisable to mix Connellsville coke with by-product coke just as the Indiana and Illinois coals are mixed with Pocahontas coal to improve the quality of the Gary coke product. In any event it seems that our coke is still necessary in some quantity at the Lake shore plants of the Steel Corporation.

The Connellsville coke region, including its district classifications, is not a large coal field, its limits are clearly defined and its area has long been well known; but it has been under active operation for some thirty years and the amount of coal remaining underground has never been estimated with any attempt at accuracy until this week, when we presented an article of the subject specially prepared for The Weekly Courier by John W. DeLau, the Pittsburgh coal expert. The limited extent of the Connellsville coke coal as shown in this article came as a great surprise to many, but it is quite probable that the H. C. Frick Coke Company has long had fairly accurate knowledge of the facts, and that the Steel Corporation acting upon this knowledge determined to construct its by-product ovens to furnish fuel for its Chicago district furnaces and devote its holdings in the Connellsville region to the service of its Pittsburg district furnaces.

This is all the more probable for the reason that it will tax the present capacity of the Connellsville region in the utmost to supply its natural market, that is to say the furnaces of Pittsburg, the Yulys, Wheeling, Cleveland, Johnstown, Buffalo and the smaller coke furnaces of Middle and Eastern Pennsylvania, which consume about 20,000,000 tons of coke annually. The Steel Corporation now owns the largest portion of the unlimited coal in the Lower Connellsville region. Much of it is undeveloped. It may be one of the objects of this official visit to consider the early opening up and operation of some of this coal to supply the coke deficiency which will soon be caused by the exhaustion of mines in the north end of the region, and possibly to consider the propriety of making some new investments across the river in Greene county where the corporation already owns a large and desirable acreage. The officers of the Steel corporation and the Frick Company seldom let a good thing get away from them.

A Tariff For Labor.

It is a common charge that the Tariff protects nobody but the manufacturer, and this has always been the Democratic position, though from time to time some special local interests intervened. This doctrine has been sectionally modified to meet the exception, notably in Louisiana where the Democrats insist upon a duty on sugar to protect the State's chief industry from the cheaper labor of foreign countries. Senator Oliver, who has been an able champion of the protective Tariff during the present session, in a lengthy speech in the Senate yesterday, sounded this note of warning to the country and its workmen.

Every pound of every substance that we can make and which is imported from outside of our borders drives out of employment some certain number of American workmen. You talk about Protection being for the benefit of the manufacturer, I grant it, but THE FIRST AND PRIME BENEFICIARY IS THE MAN WHO WORKS WITH HIS HANDS AND WHO DEPENDS UPON HIS LABOR FOR HIS LIVING. The Tariff and the railroads have come in for a vast deal of persecution at the hands of politicians. Both have had their abuses and have in some measure at least brought down upon themselves a part of their troubles, but without them this country would have made mighty poor progress. There would have been no more development of our natural resources, small increase in our population and would the spirit of the common people. The comforts and conveniences which we now enjoy as necessities would have remained luxuries out of reach of laboring people or mere dreams of invention. The railroads developed the country and the Tariff developed its manufacturing possibilities and between them they have made us the mightiest nation in the world. Let us take no Democratic step backward. The Word of Wisdom is, Forward!

Competition and Mergers.

The more the Steel probes punch the more they find out that the mergers which were formed during the past decade were not always made for the deliberate purpose of ruining the consumer, but sometimes to save the producers from absolute ruin. Competition may be the life of trade in some instances, but in others it is the death of the competitor. The Connellsville coke operators can tell the statement how it has worked in this region. John Stephenson told yesterday how it worked, in the wire nail business in 1892, and it worked just the same way in the tin plate business in 1893.

Judge Gary's dinner's may have been a little bit better, but during the '90's competition was too fierce to be restrained by derelicts much less dinners. Samples of dangerous drugs or patent medicines should by law be forbidden to be struck about private premises. Dynamite caps and all other high explosives when not in use should be kept securely under lock and key, and the custodian thereof should be held to strict accountability concerning the same. The death of one child and the maiming of another this week from careless handling of these agencies of death and destruction are only examples of what happens somewhere almost daily.

The people who furnished the cash to build our ornate and comfortable bandstand are beginning to think the band ought to give them a few notes. Assault and battery suits against public school teachers who are compelled to punish pupils in preserving discipline should be discouraged by justices of the Peace and District Attorneys, and in the event of their failure by courts and juries. The presumption is fairly with the teacher, and there it should remain, unless it is shown that a cruel and unusual punishment was inflicted.

The new West Penn line into Uniontown is now free from the entanglements of the law and will be rushed to completion before somebody gets out another injunction. Government-by-injunction, be it remembered, applies to capital as well as to labor.

The Pennsylvania Flyer has been wrecked again, this time out in Ohio. The fireman lost his life, but it was a lucky wreck for the passengers none of whom were seriously injured. The cause of the derailment should be looked into carefully. There is a suspicion in the public mind that the recent big rail orders of the railroads came none too soon.

The blanket paving ordinance has been stretched several times, but now comes the first Ward with the complaint that the blanket isn't big enough yet.

When a railroad contractor can't dodge the Baltimore & Ohio trains between Connellsville and Indian Creek, it is time for less experienced pedestrians to keep off the tracks.

Connellsville presented two first-class attractions yesterday, namely, a circus and a baseball game, and got away with both of them successfully.

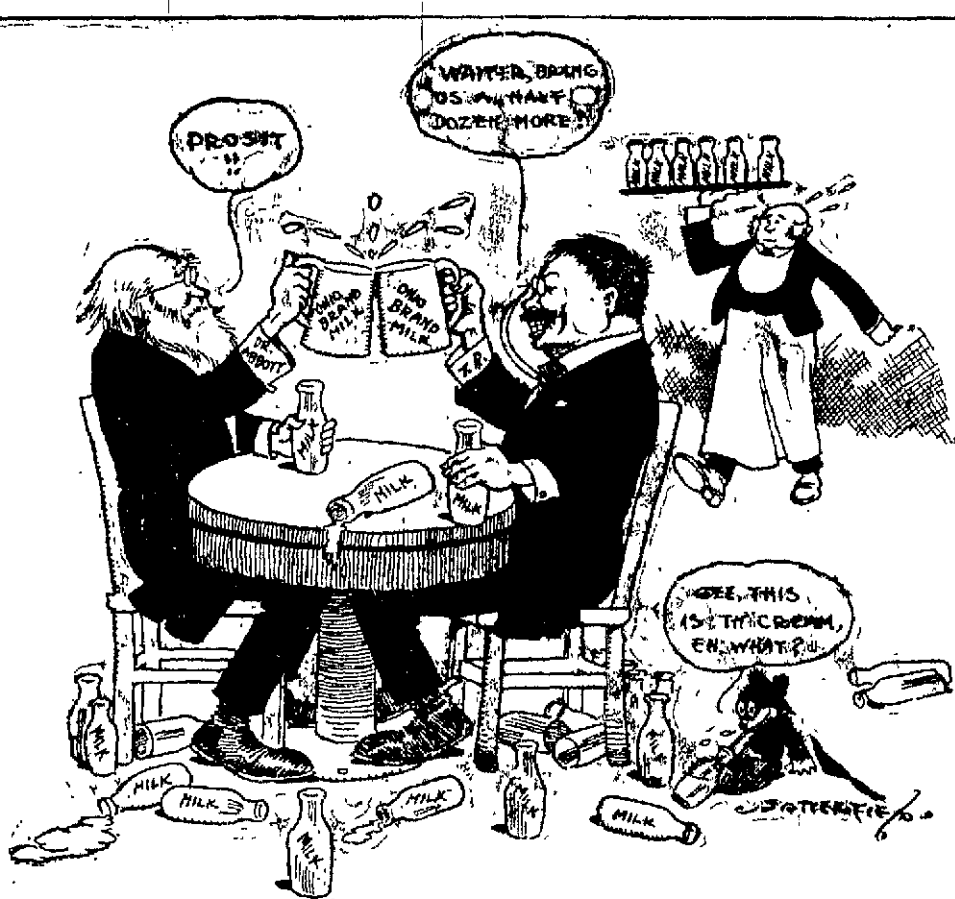

Municipal Government is perhaps not the biggest industry in South Connellsville, it is by long odds the busiest.

The baseball management had to buck against a crowd yesterday, but nobody batted about it. They all sat down and waited for the next inning.

The June bugs have just arrived. They are a trifle ahead of schedule time, but the noise of the Presidential primaries probably hastened their presence.

Bruce Pyle, on trial in the Somerset courts for the murder of William Oliver, will not be convicted out of the mouth of the victim. Oliver refused to all his lingering agony at the Connellsville hospital to divulge the name of his assailant. Justice will not be so merciful.

CELEBRATING OHIO RESULTS

When accused of drinking to excess, Oak Roosevelt said the drink no worse than Dr. Lyman Abbott, to whom he referred his question. Said Dr. Abbott: "Oh, Roosevelt is incompetent in nothing, except in drinking milk."

IN AFTER DAYS

By IRVING of Yukon.

"In After Days" is a melodrama so mellow that three distinct grades of mellowness stand out like great knobs on the forehead of the leading lady who tries to earn her salary by constantly sobbing when the drama is about ready to be taken out of the dramatic incubator.

Any farmer who has sowed the horns off steers or filed an injunction in the month of his hogs to prohibit them from rooting over his corn field, that of "In After Days," but when the alarm begins to escape and the fire of eloquence begins to sizzle, it requires a nervous driver who has taken a correspondence course of drinking embalmers to stand the strain.

The author of the drama made a number of oil cups along the working parts so that the actors will have no trouble in lubricating the dramatic machinery while giving it its evening exercise. Most of the modern plays have been made without lubricating cups and whenever they are run faster than ordinary speed without oiling, the joints, joints and hinges become overheated and the wiring burns out.

If the heavy weight a-tor and his snapper had both been operated on for oratorical apoplexy in the middle of the play, it would be much better for some of the actors who back-pedal to keep interest from shrinking.

The fact is evident, that if a lot of the characters "In After Days" had drunk spunkies (as they called themselves on mush and milk in former days) they would have been happier at the round up. In former days is the time to break up a bad dramatic old and cure eleventh-hour hunches. The lady leader in the drama should have used a stick of stevedore on several characters who butted into the game in former days and of course the climax of "The After Days" is not what the general mass of people expect.

Drama hunching is like harnessing lightning. The blacksmiths must be careful of the stroke of disapproval will make paralytics of them.

Reception at Macontown.

President James A. Farrell of the United States Steel Corporation held an informal reception at Hotel Le Roy, Macontown, yesterday. It was attended by about 300 officers and employees of the H. C. Frick Coke Company.

LOOK OUT FOR THE CARS

DO YOU know of anyone who is old enough to read, who has not seen that sign at a railroad crossing?

If everyone has seen it at some time or other, then why doesn't the railroad let the sign rot away? Why does the railroad company continue to keep those signs at every crossing?

Maybe you think, Mr. Merchant, "Most everybody knows my store, I don't have to advertise."

Your store and your goods need more advertising than the railroad needs to warn people to "Look Out for the Cars."

Nothing is ever completed in the advertising world.

The Department Stores are a very good example—they are continually advertising—and they are continually doing a good business.

If it pays to run a few ads "round about" Christmas time, it certainly will pay you to run advertisements about all the time.

It's just business, that's all to ADVERTISE IN THIS PAPER

NEWS OF A DAY IN SCOTSDALE

Program for the Observance of Memorial Day Opens Sunday.

SERMON AT UNITED BRETHREN

Teachers' Training Class Will Be Graduated at Jacobs Creek on Sunday Instead of Saturday as Program Had It—Other Notes of News.

SCOTSDALE, May 24.—Col. Ellsworth Post, of Scottdale, under Commander James Wilson and Quartermaster Harry McGarry is now planning the annual observance of Memorial Day, next Thursday.

The annual sermon to the soldiers and sailors will be preached by Rev. C. W. Hendrickson, at the United Brethren church, on Sunday morning next. The Grand Army, the Sons of Veterans, and Veterans of the Spanish American War, will meet at the post rooms, Elmer & Graft building, at 10 o'clock and march from there to the church, where seats will be reserved for them.

The observance of Memorial Day will take place on Thursday, May 30. The Grand Army, and other organizations, school children, citizens, will leave the corner of Pittsburgh and Chestnut streets at 9:30. The Grand Army band will lead the procession according to the established custom. The funeral will be given at the Scottdale cemetery, and from that cemetery the procession will move out to the Catholic cemetery, where the same observances will take place. The Sons of Veterans will furnish the firing squad. The band will also decorate the graves of deceased members.

In the afternoon the members of the G. A. R. will go to the Pennsville Baptist cemetery about 1 o'clock, and from that cemetery to the Mount Olive cemetery. The observance at Zion cemetery will take place early in the morning. During the year there were two died, Councilman A. B. Findlay, the quartermaster, and Rev. A. E. Zeek, who, though not a member of this post, always joined it in the observance, and who was really a member in Scottdale.

The people have been beautifying the cemetery for several days past, and there promises to be much work done before Memorial Day, in the way of planting flowers.

SATURDAY GAME

The Scottdale team will try conclusions with the Trotter team at Louie's park tomorrow afternoon at 3:15. The Trotter team started off in a winning manner in the opening of the Erie league and they are coming to Scottdale with the intention of carrying away the scalp of the Scottdale team. Neither batteries have been selected.

WRONG DATE GIVEN
In the program of the Teachers' Training class commencement at the Jacobs Creek Methodist Episcopal church the date of May twenty-fifth was given, but not the day. The commencement does not take place on the 25th which is Saturday, but on the 26th, Sunday afternoon and evening. The announcement, however, was correct and many fear that Saturday will be the day when the people will come to the church and be disappointed. But they look for a large crowd on Sunday.

ANNUAL SERMON

The annual sermon to the veterans of War and Alton will be preached by Rev. W. H. Guyer, pastor of the Church of God, Alton, on Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

COMMENCEMENT TICKETS
Tickets for Commencement will be placed on sale at Louie's music store on Monday morning at 5 o'clock.

CHILD IMPROVED

The condition of Earl, son of Mr. and Mrs. Solomon Sturtz, of the White school house, who is critically ill with pneumonia, was reported to be a little improved last night.

UNSEEN DANGER

The shriek of a locomotive is a warning of immediate danger so great that it must be heeded, but many people face other dangers as great without knowing it.

If Lloyd of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., writes us about a recent experience as follows: "A generally debilitated condition of the system, which had lasted for two months and was growing worse. I was impressed on me the necessity of using a good strengthening tonic. I had heard so much of it and I am pleased to say it has fulfilled every recommendation. I have regained my usual strength, and other members of the family have also found Vinol very beneficial."

If you are fatigued out and weak, have poor appetite, sleep badly or are in low spirits, then you should heed the warning and begin promptly to build up your strength with Vinol. It renews and enriches the blood, and brings back your old-time vigor and vitality. You can use Vinol at our risk, for we guarantee it to help you. of the International Executive Board arrived in Pittsburgh to institute an investigation into the charges of fraud made in connection with the recent election of officers at the district annual meeting.

John P. White, National head of the mine workers, delegated John P. Moran of Iowa, Frank Foreman of Illinois and Edward Fitzgibbon of Kansas, to investigate the charges against Fechan and his colleagues.

A secret meeting of the mine workers was held Sunday at which the speakers expressed a lack of confidence in the International committee of White. One possibility of the investigation was the elimination of Fechan and Michael Halapy, who were rival candidates for the Presidency of the district at the annual convention last month. Halapy and his friends charged the election was stolen from them by Fechan.

White has announced he will resign Pittsburgh June 3, before which time the investigating committee will have made its report.

SENATOR OLIVER RAPS STEEL BILL

Would Give Trust Monopoly of Business in United States, He Says.

POINTS OUT ITS WEAKNESS

Pennsylvania Declares Lower Steel
Duties Would Reduce Prices to a Point Where Smaller Manufacturers
Would be Driven Out of Business.

Declaring that the title of the pending steel tariff bill should be "an act to confirm and perpetuate the power and dominance of the United States Steel Corporation in the steel business of the United States," Senator George T. Oliver on Thursday spoke for nearly two hours in opposition to the Underwood bill, which has passed the House and is now under consideration in the Senate. He asserted that the proponents of the bill have no kind of understanding of the subject in hand; that the bill itself showed how little they understood the task before them; that they treated the United States Steel Corporation as the steel industry of the country, forgetting that more than half the steel tonnage of the country and more than three-fourths of the value of the steel produced in the country is produced by concerns independent of the steel corporation.

The effect of the passage of this bill, he said, would be to give the United States Steel Corporation and those who would ally themselves with it control of the steel markets of the world. "I admit," said Senator Oliver, "that so far as the United States Steel Corporation and perhaps one or two of its greater competitors are concerned, they have little to fear from this bill. If enacted, it undoubtedly will take away from them some, at least, of the markets which they now control; but at the same time it will force such a reduction in prices as to drive their smaller competitors out of business and give them monopoly, which from the first they have aimed at. With their integrated plants and their enormous resources, they can drive the individual from the field. Having done this, they can and will arrange with the foreign syndicates for a division of the world's markets. This is no dream. It has happened before and it will happen again. The whole steel business abroad is syndicate-controlled, and the managers of the syndicates will be only too ready to join with the few who will then control the American market for the exploitation of the American people."

Senator Oliver said it seemed strange that the steel schedule should be the first of the tariff schedules taken up by this Congress when almost every item in the schedule had been reduced and many of them cut in two by the tariff bill of 1909 and especially when the report of the tariff board on two of the most important schedules in the tariff bill is in. He declared he stood firmly on the Republican platform of four years ago in regard to the revision of the tariff and that he is ready to vote for revisions of the tariff schedules as fast as the tariff board makes its reports on them, so as to get an intelligent idea as to the difference in the cost of production at home and abroad.

Taking up a number of the paragraphs of the bill he proceeded to discuss what he termed "a few of the more glaring of the many mistakes it contains and which show the utter incompetency of the hands that framed it." He quoted an speech by a statement that he had made at an investigation and found that the transportation of 1,000 tons of steel rails into this country would throw out of work 5,200 American workmen for one day. He added: "Every pound of every substance that we can make which is imported from outside of our borders drives out of employment some certain number of American working men. You talk about protection being for the benefit of the manufacturer, but the man who works with his hands and who depends upon his labor for a living."

STEVENSON TELLS HOW HE "UNLOADED" SHARON MILL

Canby Scott Made Big Profits Disposing of Plants to Steel Corporation.

John Stevenson, Jr., a Scotchman and a relative of Robert Louis Stevenson, envisioned the hearings of the Federal suit to dissolve the United States Steel Corporation last Thursday when he told in a rich Scotch accent of the various deals by which he sold out half a dozen steel properties to the Steel-Trust. Stevenson, John W. Gates and the Steel Corporation itself, each time striking a profitable bargain.

Mr. Stevenson was called by the Government to give evidence to support its allegations of monopoly in the formation of the various subsidiary combinations of the "steel trust," in which all of Stevenson's former properties are now constituent parts. Entering the employ of the Carnegie Steel Company in 1875, when his fellow Scotchman, Andrew Carnegie, was making his reputation as an iron master, Stevenson in 1892 established at New Castle, Pa., the first successful flatplate mill in this country, he said. It was capitalized at $150,000. Ten years later, after selling out this and four other steel plants which he subsequently built, he started the Sharon Steel Company, merged it with the Union Steel Company and then sold out to the Steel Corporation, taking for the Sharon interest, $150,000 in the corporation's bonds, he said. He had told the Sharon steel plant, he remarked, "to shake the apple tree again."

BRUSSELS, May 21.—King Albert of the Belgians is about to emulate King George of England and enter the law courts in order to vindicate his personal character. Scandalous rumors have been current for some time affecting the queen as well as the king. One of the stories is to the effect that the queen discovered a liaison between the king and a matron and that she fired a revolver shot at the latter. Suits are being prepared against the disseminators of the stories, which are declared to be wholly without foundation. The persons against whom the suits are being brought are not named.

INTERSTATE COMMERCE

Colorado Roads Ordered to Make Equitable Coal Car Distribution.
WASHINGTON, May 24.—The Interstate Commerce Commission today ordered the Colorado & Southern railway to make equitable distribution of coal cars. The order was made on complaint of the Colorado Coal Traffic Association, the members of which alleged that the roads unjustly discriminated against certain coal operators. The commission declined to order the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway to establish at Janesville, Wis., the milling-in-transit privileges accorded to grain at St. Paul and Minneapolis.

The commission held that the privileges granted in the Twin Cities were forced by competition among the railroads and were not discriminatory. Pending further investigation, the commission continued in suspension until December 11 next the proposed most classification of freight rates in Western territory. This new classification, known as No. 51, through a re-arranging of hundreds of articles, would provide for a material increase in practically all freight charges in the West.

The members of an outing expedition in New England while tenting in a grove near a glass witnessed an incident that seemed to show a friendly understanding among squirrels. The members had just finished their dinner, but were still "at table" when a squirrel with glistening, orange eyes came creeping down a tree that stood near. He crept nearer and nearer, and finally leaped upon the improvised table.

Seeing that the woman who was presiding at table extended him a silent invitation to help himself to what he might like, the little fellow made bold to creep up to a loaf of bread from which only a slice or two had been cut. He seized it and dragged it to the side of the table and somehow managed to scramble down the side with it to the ground. He then fixed his teeth in the crust and dragged it away and down the steep side of the grove.

But when he reached the bottom and confronted the steep rise on the other side it was too much for him. Then he gave a sort of call, which seemed to be understood, for soon squirrels were seen coming from several directions. They crowded around him, and after a little conference all took hold, and with tug and strain they managed to bring the loaf to the top of the hill and disappeared with it in the woods beyond.

We could pay less for Woolens—we could buy cotton linings and inferior canvas and hair cloth. By using cheaper materials, we could make larger profits—

BUT WE DON'T.

When you come to our store we could raise the price and still give you an elegant value even if you should pay twice our never-changing prices of $15 and $20. "No More No Less" and we could hand our salesmen a 10 per cent advance for every garment sold above the advertised price—

BUT WE DON'T.

Now Mr. Clothes Buyer, don't you consider commercial standing and clean business dealing important to you? Wouldn't you rather patronize one-price, one-quality tailors of experience, ability and truthfulness than be drawn into some "Hole-in-the-Wall" shop by high-sounding promises of guaranteed garments "for a song" then be "held up" and made to pay twice the advertised price? Question: What is the difference between such under hand extortion and plain robbery?

Let others head straight for ruin if they choose, quality shall not be sacrificed here, nor will our reputation for honorable dealing be guiled one vast of several shops. Organization will continue to tailor high-class made, made-to-measure clothes with style and dash, worth $30 and $40 for one half.

"Fagin, I know you, but I'm not afraid of you. I know you for a cruel, cold-blooded murderer, an outlaw, a woman, a thief, and an outlaw. No, you cannot stop me now. You are a low-down cowardly cur, making war on women and children, sneaking around in the paths of armies, plundering and looting the helpless. I despise you and every man associated with you. Neither you, nor all your company, can make me marry Captain Grant. I will do first. No, don't move, and don't think you are dealing with a frightened girl. I am desperate enough, but I can act—"

"Hell! Jones, take that hellcat by the arm!"

"Jones will do nothing of the kind—and you—stand back, Fagin; don't dare to lay a hand on me again!"

Her face was white, her lips set, her eyes blazing, but Fagin, assured of her helplessness, laughed, and stepped forward. From what hidden vantage point it came, I know not, but there was the flash of a polished barrel, a sharp report, the whirl of smoke, and the brute went backward over a chair, crashing to the floor, with hands flung high over his head. I was aware of the swift rush of a body past me, of steps going up the stairs, and then, with a yell, my men poured out from the library into the hall.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

The Fight in the Hall.

Scarcely comprehending that Claire had escaped from the room, I was swept forward by the onrush of bodies. The preacher was knocked headlong beneath the table, but Fagin lay motionless underneath. Jones and Grant turned to a door at the right, and I leaped after them. One of the two fired, and the ball struck my shoulder, the impact throwing me back against one of my men. An instant I felt sick and dizzy, but real- ized I was not seriously hurt, and managed to stagger to my feet. The door was closed and locked, and, although my head reeled, I began to think clearly.

"The other way, ladies!" I cried. "Quick, into the hall!"

We tumbled out through the narrow entrance, and I found myself next to Eric. But we were too late to head off the fugitives, or prevent their achieving their purpose. In through the rear door, confused as to what had occurred, yet shouting fiercely, poured Fagin's wolves, seeking trouble. They were a wild, rough-looking lot, ill-dressed, and dirty even in that dim light. At an instant, congested within the limits of the hallway, both sides paused, staring at each other in mutual surprise and hesitation. Then I heard Jones' bellow of command, and Grant's nasal voice profusely ordering them to come on. With us there remained no choice; we must fight it out where we were, regardless of numbers.

"Fire! you damned fools—fire!" roared Jones, and there was a crashing of guns, the dense smoke swirling between us. A Dragon at my right went sprawling; another behind gave vent to a yell as he pounced head first down the basement stairs. There was the sound of splintering wood, of breaking glass. I felt the blood in my veins leap to the fever of it.

We were upon the fellows with a rush, firing in their very faces, and leaping madly at them. There was little room between the walls, barely space for a half-dozen to fight in shoulder to shoulder, but those behind, eager to strike also, pressed up so recklessly that we hurled them back. To me it was all confusion, uproar, deadly fighting. I could think of nothing to right or left, only of the struggling devils in my front. Faces, forms, came and vanished in the swirl of smoke, brown gun barrels whirled before me, flashes of fire burned my eyes, strange features, bearded, malignant, glared at me. I leaped straight at them, striking fiercely. Once I saw Grant, and aimed a blow at him. Then

Tom reeled against the wall, his arm shattered by a blow, and one of the men above came tumbling over me, shot dead. The fall of him cleared the stairs an instant; then the rail broke, and several toppled over with it. I stumbled back almost to the top, sweeping the hair and blood out of my eyes. What—what was the matter? They were running, those fellows down there—struggling, fighting among themselves to get away. Out-cries, yells, cries of sudden fear, made a perfect babel. I could not understand, could not grasp the meaning of the sudden panic. Who were those men surging in through the front door, pouring out through the library? Then a voice roared out:

"Dead! they're Fagin's hell-hounds, boys—let 'em wild 'em!"

Where had I heard the voice before? I sank down, too weak to stand, my head hanging over the edge of the stairs. Some hand drew me back, but I had no strength left. Only I could think—and the truth came to me. Camden militia! Camden militia! By all the gods, Farrell was there! It was the voice of the Irish minute man I heard the night we captured Delavina's raiders. Then I closed my eyes, and forgot.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

Searching for Claire.

I was unconscious, yet not for long. The first touch of water served to revive me, and I became aware that an arm supported my head, although everything was indistinct before my eyes.

"More water, Mike," said a voice close at hand. "Yes, that will do."

With a yell of rage, those crushed against the wall hurled forward, driving the others; men were lifted and hurled at us; others gripped at our feet; by sheer force of numbers they swept us backward. It was hand to hand, neither side having time to reload their weapons. The smoke rose, permitting a view of the shambles. There was a tangle of arms, a jumble of faces. They were maddened beasts, desperate, revengeful. Hands clutched at us, gun butts were thrust into our faces, the crush too dense to permit of their being swung overhead. My Dragons had their swords out, and stood to like men, the steel blades dripping as they tasted blood. But killing one only brought a new man to the front. One does not see so much as feel in such a jumble. Yes, I know we were worried, outnumbered. They came at us like a battering ram. I saw the peremptory shot through the forehead; I saw Eric go down beneath a crushing stroke, and roll under my feet. I stopped on bodies, fighting for my own life as I never fought before. Somewhere I had gripped a gun out of dead fingers and swung it savagely, smashing the stock at the first blow, but retaining the twisted iron. The intensity of excitement seemed to clear my brain. I began to distinguish voices, in noise faces. I heard Grant yell softly in the rear, I heard Jones' roar, "To hell with 'em! To hell with 'em!" Out of the murk of struggling figures I made out his black beard, the gleam of yellow fangs, and leaped toward him, striking men down until I was able to swing at his head. He went over like a stricken ox under a butcher's ax, knocking aside two men as he fell. It gave me chance to spring out of the melee.

"To the stairs, man! The stairs!" I cried. "We can hold them there!"

I cannot describe now how we made it, but we did. I only know Tom and I held the rear, sweeping circles of death with our whirling gun-barrels, falling back step by step as we fought. At last I felt the bottom stairs with my foot, and heard a voice shout:

"Come up, sir! We'll hold 'em now!"

Then I was above the heads of the mob, gripping the rail, and sobbing for breath. There followed a moment's wait, an instant of hesitancy. I began to see and feel once more. Below us the hall was jammed with men, so close they pressed together as to be almost helpless. Blood streamed from a cut in my forehead, nearly blinding me, but I wiped it away, and took one glimpse at their angry upturned faces, and gained a glimpse of my own men. There lay helpless propped against the wall. Tom and I stood alone, his face blackened by powder, his shirt ripped into rags; the other three wore above, pistols in hand.

"Are they loaded?" I gasped.

"Yes, sir."

"Stand ready then, but look out for above; there was a guard up there—Tom."

He turned his face slightly.

"Here back a step or two more; we've got to see them."

"All right, sir."

I felt weak from loss of blood, my head reeling, and had to hold to the rail. Below us, growing like wild beasts, but seemingly leaderless, the mob crunched forward to the foot of the stairs. Suddenly I saw Grant, and the sight of him gave me new life.

"You black-fouled hound!" I called down angrily. "You've kept yourself safe so far. Now come on!"

He snarled some answer, what, I know not. There was an empty pistol in my belt, and I flung it at him with all the force of my arm. He dodged, the weapon striking the man behind. With a howl of rage the fellows leaped toward us, bearing Grant on the crest of the wave. The pistol of the Dragons cracked; three fell, blocking the stairs with their bodies. We had room now in which to swing our iron bars, and we battered them like demons. I lost sight of Grant, the red drip of blood over my eyes making all before me a mist. I only knew enough to strike. Yet light as we would there was no holding them. We were forced to give way. Guns began to spit fire. I saw the wounded Dragon dragged down under the feet of the mob, hands gripped my legs, and I kicked at the faces in my effort to tear loose.

Colonel Mortimer's Prepped Up on His Pillow, One Hand Grasping a Pistol.

Where is Farrell? Oh, Dan, this is Major Lawrence.

"One of the Dragons said he was in command, but he's dead!"

"No, I think not, but utterly exhausted, and weak from loss of blood. They put up a game fight."

"Only three on their feet when we got in. Hello, Lawrence, getting back to the world, lad?"

"Yes, I managed to answer, feeling strength enough to lift myself, and vaguely noticing his features. "Is that you, Farrell?"

"It certainly is," cheerfully "Duval has his arm about you, and the Camden boys are herding those devils down below. You had some trouble from the way things look. How many men had you?"

I rubbed my head, endeavoring to recollect, staring down into the hall. It was filled with dead and wounded men, and at the foot of the stairs was a pile of bodies.

"Twelve, altogether," I replied finally. "They—they were too many for us."

"Three to one, or more, I should judge. We got here just in time."

I was up now, looking into their faces, slowly grasping the situation.

"Yes," I said, feeling the necessity of knowing "How did it happen? What brought you?"

"All natural enough. Clinton got away night before last with what was left of his army. Left three burning, and made a forced march to the ships at Sandy Hook. Left everything to save his troops. Washington, realizing the uselessness of holding them longer, sent most of his militia home about six miles out there on the pike road a half-dozen men named Jenkins came up with us. He was too badly frightened to tell a straight story, but we got out of him that there was a fight on here, and came over as fast as our horses would travel!" His eyes swept the hall. "Five minutes later would have been too late."

"But Farrell, the girl! Do you know anything about the girl?"

"What girl? Do you mean Claire Mortimer? Is she here?"

"Yes, her father is lying helplessly wounded up stairs, and she must be with him. Eric is somewhere in the hall, either dead or wounded. I saw him fall just as we retreated to the stairs."

Farrell leaned over and called to some one below.

"Not yet, sir," was the answer.

"Well, hunt for him. Now, we'll go up and find Claire. Major, can you climb the rest of the stairs? Help him, Duval!"

"I experienced no great difficulty, my strength coming back rapidly. There was a wounded Dragon leaning against the wall, and half-way down the hall lay another body, face down. Without doubt this was the guard Fagin had stationed there. Duval paused to help the wounded man, but Farrell and I moved on across the dead guard to the open door beyond. Colonel Mortimer, unable to move, was propped up on his pillow, one hand grasping a pistol. With sinking arm he leveled it at us.

"Who are you? Quick, now!" he quavered. "I've shot one, and I'm good for more."

"You know me, Colonel," and Farrell stepped inside. "I am 'Dull' Farrell, this is Major Lawrence." He looked at us with dull eyes, his hand falling weakly.

"Farrell—Farrell—surely, the blacksmith. What Lawrence? The—the of-floor Claire knows?"

"Yes, he's a tough-looking object I admit, but there has been a fight down below, sir, in which he had a share. We've just cleaned out Red Fagin's gang. We came up here to tell the good news to you and your daughter."

The Colonel's head sank back upon the cushioned pillow.

"My daughter—Claire—she is not here."

"Not here?" I cried, aroused by the admission. "Did she not return to you?"

"No; they came for her to go down stairs—a tall man with a black beard, and two others. They took her away an hour ago, and I have seen nothing of her since. I heard the shots, the sound of fierce fighting, but could not move from the bed. Tell me, Major, what has become of my little girl?"

"I do not know," I confessed, gazing about in bewilderment. "She came up the stairs, I am sure. It was just as the fight began, and I had scarcely a moment to observe anything before we were at it fiercely. She shot Fagin down, and then ran."

"Shot Fagin! Claire!"

"Yes, she was justified. Had she not acted so quickly I would have done so myself. He was forcing her into marriage."

"Into marriage! With whom?"

"Captain Grant," I answered passionately. "It was a deliberate plot, although he pretended to be innocent, and a helpless prisoner. Later the man fought with the outlaws against us, after Jones was killed he even assumed command."

"He has been hand and glove with those fellows from the first, Colonel," chimed in Farrell honestly. "I've known it, and told Lawrence so a month ago. I only hope he was killed down below. But what can have come of Claire?"

"She never passed along here," insisted Mortimer. "For I haven't taken my eyes from that door."

"Then she's hiding somewhere in those front rooms. Come on, Lawrence, and we'll search them."

We went out hurriedly, leaving the wounded man lying helplessly on the bed, and stepped carelessly across the dead sentinel lying in the hallway. The memory of Peter returned to me. He was not the kind to desert his mistress at such a time. Stopping Farrell, I stepped back to inquire. The Colonel opened his eyes wearily at sound of my voice.

"He is not here," he explained slowly. "Both Peter and Toneyah were sent away to find a surgeon, and have not returned. We anticipated no danger here with Captain Grant present."

NEW CASTLE WINS; TOO MUCH HARRIGAN

Tyrone Player Contributes Four Big, Glaring Errors.

PITCHERS CHANGED TOO OFTEN

No Excuse for Yanking Either Ritter or Horne Out of the Box When Fielding Behind Them Is Entirely to Blame for the Bad Walling.

Connellsville started out like a winner yesterday afternoon and the 200 fans in attendance thought for a time that victory had finally rested on the Cokers' shoulders. The defeat can properly be laid to the door of too much change in pitchers. New Castle won 5 to 3. Ritter was removed from the mound after four hits had been made off him, two of the scratch variety. The last hit off the Squeak was a home run by Horne. Just what Horne had been responsible for in the run getting is not known. Hauser was sent in without any warming up. The ball was hit by Bobby Groff. Bobby saw a man flash by him, going to third and made a shot toward that sack. Then he changed his mind and threw to first, way too late. Two sacrifice flies brought in two runs and the game was lost.

The lineup was again changed and it was thought at first it was an improvement. Harrigan came all the way from Tyrone to play ball here and was thrust into the Coker lineup. Four clinkers told the story. For four innings he played a good game in the field. Then a ball was hit to him with the bases full. The Tyrone result grasped the ball firmly and threw in the direction of the grandstand. The ball struck its mark and two runs came across. Umpire Goehler came to the rescue of the Cokers and sent Deacon back to third on the one base overthrow rule. The eighth inning was when Tyrone came to the front with two juicy errors that eventually gave New Castle the game. The first was a fumble right through his legs. The second was a hard chance but should have been gotten. To end up the game in style Harrigan threw the ball away in the final inning. The score:

BREEZY BITS OF O. & P. BASEBALL

How many more games are the Cokers going to give away? There isn't the slightest excuse for losing that contest yesterday. Pulling the pitchers out is the worst judgment that has yet been displayed. Can't figure how a chance of twirlers will keep the holders from making errors. Mr. Harrigan should have been left in the hook early in the contest. The left side of the diamond is awfully weak. Bobby Groff is a slow thinker, a fact that becomes painfully apparent when there is more than one way to play the ball that comes to him. Give the pitchers a chance. Nothing will discourage them more than to be derelicted in pitches when they have been doing more than their share of the work.

There is still hope. A hard hitting infielder who can also hit will help the team out wonderfully. The defensive strength needs bracing.

When 200 fans can attend a baseball game in the face of four straight defeats, there would probably be something doing in the attendance line if the team won as many in a row.

"Jim" Keegan of Everson didn't know whether he would be on hand or not. He had originally made the agreement with himself not to be on

MEN'S AND YOUNG MEN'S CLOTHING FOR SUMMER

Clothing that gives identity to the wearer; styled and tailored with authority. Wright-Metzler service in men's ready-to-wear clothing is based on the idea that every man who wears a Wright-Metzler suit shall be distinctly well-dressed. Correct form and good taste govern the selection of materials, and the clothing has the excellencies of good custom-tailor work, even to the equivalent of a final "try-on."

Our tailors make alterations, if necessary.

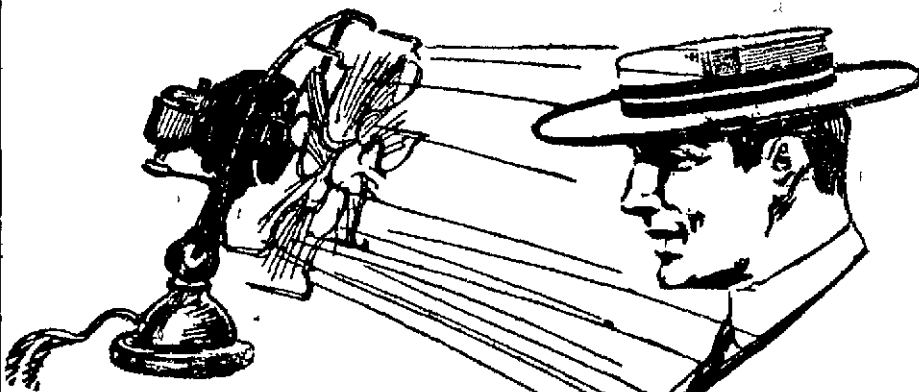

We invite you to select your summer suit from a stock that is "different" in the little details of tailor-finishing from the usual run of clothing—and the more particular you are, the more you will appreciate the niceties of cloths, colorings, patterns and making.

Straws that stick on in a Breeze

Impossible? No, because the inside leather band is so arranged—or put in—that there's even pressure—without binding—all around. It takes a pretty stiff breeze to pry loose a hat so equipped. Most of our straws are imported. They bear the names of:

Pinay and Leduc, Paris, France.
Barford and Sons, Luton, Eng.
Liaud Freres, Paris, France.
R. Cinelli & Figli, Firenze, Italy

There is a decided craze for imported straws—they are distinctive, light-weight, weather proof finished and hand made.

The "Alubans," a French hat of woven braid. Yacht style, reinforced brim, very light weight. Beautifully white and entirely different from any shown before. The braid resembles a Panama and is woven in much the same way. Price $4.00.
Other hats—China splits, Jap Santas—many shapes, $1.00 to $4.00.
Panama hats, $3.50, $5.00, $7.50, $10.00.

hand until the Cokers won a game. He may have to put in the whole summer in the grandstand.

Horne is still bothered with a bad finger. He couldn't put much stuff on the ball but got away well, but he had enough to hold New Castle.

It reminded one of a Uniontown-Connellsville game here several years ago when the Cokers were about seven runs ahead. Uniontown came to the bat in the ninth and proceeded to rap out eight runs, enough to win the game.

Phelan was a little too anxious to throw a man out at first and muffed a ground hit.

Umpire Goehler is authority for the statement that former Umpire Holland has settled down and taken unto himself a bride. The event occurred last week in Akron, Holland's home town. Holland has given up umpiring and is now manager of a shoe store in Akron. Holland was the man who had a run-in with Philfer in the Pennsylvania and West Virginia leagues. Philfer was with Pittsburgh in the United States league for a while this season.

Murray, the second sucker for Manager Smith's New Castle outfit, played his first game at New Castle and showed up well. He is a big fellow with lots of pepper. He hails from Buffalo, N. Y.

Umpire Goehler lives in Massillon, O. He has been working in the minor leagues for several years and has done well. He has given satisfaction here all week.

Too much Harrigan and too many pitchers spelled defeat for the Cokers.

The wire screen proved to be of little protection to spectators in the grandstand. Everybody was fouling and Dennis Johnson was kept on the run. Many balls were lost, the grandstand is only partially covered and several foul balls went through the uncovered part. One ball shot through the netting and another struck Councilman E. U. Metzler on the rebound.

The change in the lineup looked good in practice and during the early stages of the game. Danny Hart hit the first two times up for triples, both of which figured in the scoring. Gotsie looked good at second. Harrigan proved to be weak. Bobby Groff had but one chance, when he held the ball too long.

Not a semblance of a hit was made off McElvey. Klingshirn lasted but three innings. McElvey went in and held the Cokers safe for the remainder of the game.
